RURAL TRANSIT PROJECT COORDINATOR

This position with the Quaboag Valley Community Development Corporation is based in Ware, MA and requires regional travel. The Coordinator is responsible for the day-to-day activities of the Rural Transit Project, now in its planning year. The project will use a consumer-centered approach (Design Thinking) to plan and develop a sustainable, scalable model for rural transportation to improve health outcomes for rural residents and influence health and transportation policy in the long term.

We are looking for a person with a passion for recruiting, involving and supporting community members from the Quaboag Region to participate in the project. The successful candidate will have a strong background in community outreach, meeting facilitation and data collection and analysis and is self-motivated and highly productive. This is an opportunity to make a positive community impact!

The work schedule is Monday – Friday with some nights and weekends. A Bachelors plus 2+ years experience in public health, public policy, transportation or human services is required; project management experience is highly beneficial. A Masters in one of these fields is strongly preferred and prior transportation project development experience is a plus.

Resumes will be accepted until the position is filled. Immediate availability is essential. The full job description is available at www.qvcdc.org. Send resumes to GailFF@qvcdc.org.
